New Career Opportunities

Technical Professional Career College (TPCC) is a college training student in high tech careers for the future.

The inspiration for TPCC came about as a result of the staffing needs for one of our local business owners, a dry utility consulting engineering firm. The owner saw the need for a training institution that would focus on needs of employers while keeping tuition for training at an affordable price. Therefore, employers will get trained employees who can hit the job running and students will not pay high tuition for training.

TPCC's Training Programs are 3 1/2 to 5 1/2 months and its curriculum is approved by Veterans Affairs G.I. Bill, San Diego Workforce Partnership under the Employment Development Department (EDD), the State Disability Rehabilitation Department. Also, TPCC seeks to provide continued educational services to individuals who are "under-represented" in the following categories: (continued on page 2)

TPCC Student Isaac Guzman hired by local Dry Utility Engineering Firm

Technical Professional Career College (TPCC) graduate Isaac Guzman! Guzman enrolled at TPCC in October of 2009. Prior to attending TPCC, Guzman, was employed in the restaurant industry since high school and recently found himself with fewer hours resulting in less pay due to the current economic challenges. TPCC offered a broad and in-depth program than what other colleges offered in engineering drafting. Guzman was referred to TPCC through South County Career Services. Guzman completed the program in Computer Aided Drafting (CAD) for Civil in early March of 2010. As most students of the college,

Guzman and others are given the opportunity to participate in an internship at PCG Utility Consulting, Inc (PCG), a dry utility consulting engineering firm in Casa de Oro. Upon graduation, Guzman was immediately hired by PCG as a drafter. Through his extensive research of community colleges and vocational schools, Guzman found "If you put an effort to research what career and educational possibilities exist, you can make it happen for yourself. TPCC exceeded my expectations and gave me the necessary skills to secure a financial future and has inspired me to pursue my future goal as a Civil Engineer", says Guzman. ■
